of millions to one that they would never produce a sola!" system, the earth, the vegetable or animal kingdom of human history. No number of material atoms, although eternal and endowed with mechanical forces can explain the unity and order of the Universe and therefore the supposi • tion of their eternal existence does not free us from the necessity of believing in a single intelligent cause —a Supreme Mind —to move and mould, combine and adjust the ultimate atom^ of matter into a single, orderly, homogeneous system. Hen' again the progress of science has not more convincingly and completely disproved the once prevalent notion that the universe was created about six thousand years ago than^it has convincingly and completely established that the hitches or hurdles mentioned above and various transformations and activities involved in the process of the evolution of the universe, can be solved, as stated in Chap. VI Supra, only by the recognition of a Creative Intelligence, a Designing and Directing Power, an Invisible Spirit permeating, encompassing, control-ing the entire line of evolution around the entire circle oi cosmic activity—an informing, vivifying, evolving Cause behind the countless manifestations in the different departments of nature, as postulated by our ancient Rishis.

In passing, I may state that physical science has also established that what we call matter is essentially force and nothing but force, that the whole material world is ultimately resolvable into forces ; that all its forces are but manifestations or outgoings of One Will-Force. If so, the whole material world is not only dependent on but is the Will of One Supreme Mind. This Will is not only the cause and controlling power of nature but its substance also. Every atom, every molecule is not therefore self-existent, but must in what is ultimate in it, bear the impress of a supernatural power and wisdom and reflect the glory of a Supreme Being and proclaim its dependence on Him. According to the Rishis also, i^e grea;! secret, the final mystery of the Universe is
